HAZING AT WEST POINT

Most Severely Condemned In Course of Senate Debate

AS BRUTAL AND COWARDLY

Vote on Army Re-organization Bill Will be Taken Friday Afternoon at Four O'clock.

Washington, Jan 16.—A final vote upon the pending army reorganization bill will be taken by the senate at 4 o'clock Friday, under the terms of an agreement reached late today.

Speeches in opposition to the bill were delivered by Mr. Allen (Pop., Neb.), Teller (Sil., Rep., Colo.), and Butler (Pop. N. C.) Mr. McCumber (Rep.) N. D., made an argument in support of the measure.

The feature of the debate was the denunciation of the practice of hazing at the West Point military academy. Mr. Allen, Mr. Money (Miss) and Mr. McCumber declared it to be an exhibition of brutality and cowardice, the Mississippi senator maintaining that a cadet whom others attempted to haze would be justified in killing his assailants. He declared that if he were a cadet upon whom such cowardly brutality were attempted, he would kill those who assaulted him, if he had to wait a hundred years for the opportunity.

A joint resolution relating to leaves of absences granted officers of the army, providing that the time consumed in travel by officers between the Philippines, Cuba, Puerto Rico and the United States shall not be included in the leave granted, was passed.

The Army Bill.

The army bill was then resumed.

Mr. Teller moved to strike out that paragraph of the bill which empowered the president to place on the retired list any officer who has been suspended from duty by sentence of a court martial or executive order in mitigation of such sentence. It was agreed to.

Mr. Teller said that the paragraph might apply to Major Joseph H. Wham, whose record he dwelt upon as a splendid one filled with acts of gallantry at Nashville, Franklin and the other battlefields. He read a number of recommendations from a number of influential people urging Major Wham's appointment as paymaster general, and said this recommendation seemed to have brought Major Wham an infamous persecution.

Mr. Carter asked for a final vote upon the bill at 4 o'clock tomorrow.

Allen's Objection.

Mr. Allen said that for the time being he would object, although subsequently he might withdraw his objection. Mr. Allen then entered upon an extended discussion of the pending measure disclaiming his opposition to it in any form it might be presented. He declared it was wrong in its purpose and radically wrong constitutionally. Adverting to the Philippine question, which he said he had no purpose to discuss, he said:

"The Filipinos never owed allegiance to the United States and do not today. They owe allegiance only to their own island government. However weak and puny it may be, they are not rebels, though they may be insurgents. I am opposed to this bill because its avowed purpose is to provide soldiers to be sent to the Philippines."

Discussing the presentation a few days ago of a petition of 2,000 Filipinos to the senate, Mr. Allen urged that the signers of the appeal simply were exercising their right to appeal to congress; yet, he said, the petition was denounced by Mr. Hawley as treason.

"The flippancy with which the term traitor and treason are being used," said Mr. Allen, "is getting to be a stench in the nostrils of some of us."

West Point Hazing.

In the course of his remarks Mr. Allen discussed vigorously the situation at West Point as brought out by the pending investigation. He declared that brutality had been developed at West Point which ought not to be expected to exist among barbarians.

"This thing called hazing 'prize fighting' exclaimed Mr. Allen, "why, the prize fighter is a gentleman compared with some of those young ruffians at West Point. Indeed, life has been lost recently."

After a brief review of the Booz case, Mr. Allen declared that the first thing a plebe knows on his arrival at West Point is brutal assault and humiliating indignity.

"And these things," shouted Mr. Allen, "take place within the knowledge of the officers of the institution. These new cadets are compelled to eat soap, they are compelled to get down on their knees and jump like a frog and they are compelled to endure other indignities which I would not dare in this presence to mention.

"Some of the regular army officers say hazing cannot be heard; they cannot be protected. You place one of the old volunteer officers at the head of that institution and in six weeks he will put a stop to it or there will be some dead cadets there.

"This brutal outrage ought to be suppressed, and it can be suppressed. Boy or man, he who will use his superior strength in humiliating or brutally treating a weaker person is a coward. And yet this bill encourages and supports West Point as it present conducted.

"With authority I would stop that brutality at West Point," declared Mr. Allen, "or I would dismantle the school and turn over to the various states the education of the youth of the country for military pursuits.

"I have information which leads me to believe that hazing at West Point is resorted to for the purpose of forcing out of the institution cadets appointed from civil life in order to make room for the sons of army officers. And if they cannot force out by humiliation and intimidation, they prescribe a course of examination which is in their own hands and which they could not pass themselves and thus force the prescribed cadet from the school."

Money Wants Bloodshed.

Mr. Money (Miss) declared that the hazing never was warranted and that he knew of some cadets who had been hazed to the point of danger.

"They were hazed to a degree," said Mr. Money, with deep feeling, "that would have warranted the boys in killing the hazers."

Interjected Mr. Allen:

"And I want to say," continued Mr. Money, "that if I were a cadet at West Point and were hazed in so cowardly and brutal a manner, I would kill the hazers if the opportunity did not come for a hundred years afterward."

Continuing his discussion of the question of the cadets at West Point, Mr. Allen said:

"These cadets carrying hazing to the extent of taking life and maiming maliciously, they have taken life and the senator from Mississippi (Money) says they have taken life in several instances.

Mr. McCumber (N. D.) argued in support of the pending bill. Incidentally he vigorously handled the practice of hazing at West Point.

"That practice," said he, "creates the worst character of brutality and the worst character of cowardice. Any boy who is guilty of attempting to punish one who is physically unable to meet him is such a coward that he should be discharged from the service."

Discussing the situation in the Philippines, Mr. Teller declared that conditions in the islands had not improved since the United States had succeeded Spain there. Capable and intelligent observers, Mr. Teller asserted, had pronounced the Filipinos as fit to govern themselves as any other oriental race. In conclusion Mr. Teller said:

"I am not in favor of giving up the islands. I want to hold them because I think that would be better for the Filipinos and that the islands would be valuable to us. If, however, we can hold them only by force, there is no [illegible] in any other that would justify us in retaining them."

Mr. Hawley secured unanimous consent that a final vote should be taken on the bill at 4 o'clock Friday.

The senate then, at 5 o'clock, went into executive session and at 5:50 adjourned.

ALEXANDER'S FUNERAL

Leavenworth Kas., Jan. 16.—The funeral of Fred Alexander, who was burned at the stake yesterday afternoon, took place today and was attended only by the undertaker and his assistants. The remains were interred in the potter's field.

The coroner's jury empaneled to view the remains before interment decided when he will hold an inquest, he stating that he knows no evidence in the matter but is unable to find any one who can testify to the act.

Nothing has been done toward making the arrests and when the coroner was asked if he would take any steps in the matter he answered:

"It is a state case. I have nothing to do with it."

Miss Thedes, who it is claimed, was struck by Alexander and threatened with death if she said anything about it, stated to a reporter tonight that the announcement that she had identified Alexander as her assailant was erroneous. Her statement is that Alexander looked like the man but she was not positive about it.

MINING LAWS

Important Bill Has Been Introduced In the United States Senate.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 16.—A bill of importance to western miners was today introduced by Senator Stewart. It proposes an amendment to the mining laws providing that one person shall not be permitted to locate more than one placer claim or one quartz location upon a single vein or lode, and that annual assessment work must be performed prior to December 31, no extension of time being granted when locations are made after September 1.

GOVERNOR MOUNT

Indianapolis, Jan. 16.—James A. Mount, who retired Monday noon from the office of governor of Indiana, died very suddenly at 6:45 o'clock tonight in his apartments at the Denison hotel.

He had attended a reception tendered by Mrs. Mount to a number of prominent ladies of the city during the afternoon and shortly after the guests departed he started for a walk. Upon his return he said nothing about being ill and, after removing his hat and overcoat, sat down to read. In a few minutes he turned to his wife and niece, who were in the room, and said: "I am sick; it's my heart. Send for a doctor at once."

A physician was called who found, those in attendance at Mr. Mount's bedside chafing his feet and hands. The doctor knelt down and listened for a heart beat and then, arising, said:

"You can do nothing more for him; he is dead."

During the forenoon Mr. Mount visited the office of Colonel Charles E. Wilson, his former private secretary, and was in consultation with him for several hours. In the afternoon he made a speech before the Indiana State Wool Growers' association and was elected president. Later he assisted in the [illegible] guests.

During his term of office Governor Mount was attacked several times by fainting spells but none of them were serious. He had retired from politics and would have returned to his farm in Montgomery county Friday.

THE PATERSON CASE

Prisoners Were Put on the Stand in Their Own Defense and Evidence Completed.

Paterson, N. J., Jan. 16.—Counsel for the defense in the Jennie Hoschauer murder trial today practically closed the case. W. A. Death, Walter McAlister and Andrew Campbell, the three men on trial for the murder went on the stand by their own request and told their stories of the events of the night Jennie Hoschauer met her death, while in their company.

They told the same story practically and their testimony varied but little as to details. The phrase set up by counsel for the three defendants was a general and specific denial of all the accusations made against them.

McAlister, Death and Campbell were on the stand three sessions, and the time they were acting on a genuine impeach when they took the girl out of the saloon to the hack. They claim that she was jolly drunk for a time in the back room of Sall's saloon, said she was joking and laughing after the first drink, that she became drowsy after taking the absinthe and then became dead drunk. They had thought a drink of the fresh air would do her good and had taken her across the river into the country. The assault was denied.

The back of it would appear, from the statements made by the prisoners, was not intended for the party at first but for McAlister, Kerr and two young women, whose names McAlister refused to divulge on the ground that their names had not been mentioned before and he did not want to cause them annoyance. The story as told by each defendant appeared plausible, explanatory and reasonable, but conflicted with the testimony of the hackman and the alleged confession of Death and Campbell as introduced by the state and admitted as evidence. The girl was known to be a [illegible] in the effort to introduce it. [illegible] said to have been made to Campbell as evidence in getting it all in even more detailed manner than would have been possible yesterday.

The case is now in the jury's hands and probably the case will be left with the jury about sundown although it may be that Judge Dickson will defer the charge to the jury until Friday.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE

Last Formalities in the Election of United States Senator.

MR. PATTERSON'S SPEECH

Most Unusual Incident Occurred During Joint Session of Assembly New Bills Introduced.

Special to the Gazette.

Denver, Jan. 16.—One of the most remarkable scenes ever witnessed in a Colorado legislature took place today in the joint assembly. The formal vote for United States senator had just been announced and before Mr. Patterson was declared a repeater on Mr. Sprague of El Paso county arose and asked unanimous consent to read a newspaper clipping read. No objection being made, he sent to the reading clerk a clipping from the Colorado Springs Gazette and the reading clerk proceeded to read it throughout. The clipping was the leading editorial in today's paper entitled "Senator Patterson." The reading throughout was interrupted by the most enthusiastic cheers at the fair and impartial analysis of Mr. Patterson's political and personal character. At the close cheers were given for the Gazette and for Mr. Stevens. The sentiment was universal that the journalism which treats political opponents with fairness and justice is so rare in Colorado and the people at large so thoroughly disapprove of any other treatment that the Gazette editorial was welcomed by all members of the legislature as setting a worthy example in that line, whatever may have been the cause, the fact remains that the editorial in question was discussed by members and galleries alike and the action of the legislature in having it read in open session approved on the spot.

THE JOINT SESSION.

The Colorado legislature met in joint session this morning and [illegible] the election of Hon. Thomas M. Patterson for United States senator to succeed Senator Wolcott. The affairs were similar to the inauguration of Governor Orman in that it was simple in the proceedings. The hall did not contain decorations of any kind. One bunch of Marechal Neil roses was placed near Mr. Patterson's desk after he had taken his seat on the platform.

The formalities consisted of the reading of the journals of both houses bearing on the vote yesterday and the declaration of the president of the senate that Mr. Patterson was elected. A committee consisting of Speaker Montgomery and Senator Barela was appointed to escort Mr. Patterson to the platform.

Mr. Patterson Introduced.

When the committee escorting Mr. Patterson entered the room the 600 people in attendance arose en masse and cheered and applauded the new senator. Mr. Patterson walked briskly to the place assigned him and after bowing to the cheering crowds remained standing while Speaker Montgomery introduced him to President of the Senate Coates. Mr. Montgomery in introducing him considered it a high honor and personal privilege to have the honor of being his escort to the first Democratic senator-elect from Colorado. He compared Mr. Patterson with Stephen A. Douglass of Illinois, Samuel J. Tilden of New York and Wm. J. Bryan of Nebraska.

In introducing Mr. Patterson to the audience Mr. Coates said that his election is popular. He also said that no matter wherever found the [illegible] under all circumstances, still be himself, Thomas M. Patterson.

With Wild Applause,

As Mr. Patterson arose to speak the crowd again broke forth in the wildest applause. Handkerchiefs were waved and for fully two minutes the house was the scene of continual uproar. During this time Mr. Patterson stood and cast his eye over the assemblage. The only change that came over him was when he caught the eyes of his wife and daughter in the gallery box at his left, he smiled and a look of satisfaction came over his face that was answered by the glisten of tears in the eyes of his helpmate and daughter.

His address was read from a typewritten manuscript. It received the attention of all and was liberally applauded. Especially was this applause noticeable when he declared himself to be a Democrat.

MR. PATTERSON'S SPEECH

Mr. Patterson spoke as follows:

"Mr. President and Members of the Assembly: I sincerely thank you for the honor your election confers. The field of labor to which you have called me is wide and comprehensive. The tasks the field presents cannot but prove difficult and exacting. How well I may meet your expectations time alone can determine. One thing I realize. I am to follow a service of conspicuous brilliancy. Some of his most desirable senatorial equipments I cannot hope to possess. My wish will be that I may [illegible] his devotion to the substantial interests of the state, and in efforts to realize those ideals of government which the intelligent and progressive masses of the country recognize as the best.

"It will be a pleasure I cannot adequately express in words to sit beside our senior senator for two years at least, and [illegible] while I learn wisdom from his lips and profit by the example of his [illegible] which [illegible] devotion to his state and country.

Political Differences.

"I met a friend upon the street yesterday who congratulated me. He said: 'I differ with you politically. I cannot approve your political views nor your political methods. I think they are not for the best interests of the state; yet I believe you will make a good senator.' I walked along and pondered. I asked myself wherein are the economic systems I approve the industrial relations I would establish—the status between employer and employe I should attain, the fundamental propositions of the republic that all men are created equal and governments are ordained among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, not for the interests of the state?

"I wondered—are there to be no ideals tolerated in government? Is everything that pertains to government to be measured by the sordid rule of money? Is Mammon to be forever the ascendant over man in our legislative halls, and is what is good for the state to be measured solely by the amount of capital a policy will bring in, or the growth of population it may induce?

Wealth and Happiness.

"We are all proud of Colorado. It is beyond compare in the means for wealth which nature holds out to the industrious and intelligent. Here the royal metals are in greater abundance than in any other land, while, in a stride, fields of coal and iron are reached, as broad and rich as [illegible] other state can boast. Its soil is sumptuous in the quality and variety of its products—its scenery and climate are the themes of song and story. We all glory in its material progress, and our aim should be to unceasingly add to its material prosperity. But increase in the mere sum of its wealth does not necessarily add to its sum of happiness. The increase in wealth may only add to the bank accounts of those already rich, while the condition of the masses may [illegible] prove or it may grow worse. If happiness is measured by increase in wealth, then increase in dividends should be accompanied by increase in wages. If a trust may annually divide $50,000,000 among its stockholders, the amount of dividends should be lessened by shortening the hours of labor and increasing the wages of the toilers who produce them, while the cost of the articles to consumers should be lessened to consumers. When, upon the watered capitalization of $100,000,000, a trust pays annually $50,000,000 in dividends, and a single stockholder in the trust accumulates, within a decade and a half, a private fortune of $200,000,000—then mill[illegible] of consumers have been robbed, while the toilers for the trust have not been fairly paid for their labor.

Against the Trusts.

"With the great industries of the country gathering together in the modern trust with the power to extort higher prices of everything by consumers must [illegible] the [illegible] opposition which the trust secures with dividends upon trust stocks jumping to dazzling heights year by year, may not your senator be pardoned if he urges that either the trust system should be abolished or that the law shall protect the laborer from its mailed hand by shortening his hours of work and securing for him a better wage for his toil?

"True prosperity does not exist in a land where a few may live in palaces, while the many must live in hovels.

"True prosperity is not found where a trust may, by resolution only, quadruple its capital stock in a day, and double its dividends upon the watered capitalization, while, at the same time, its labor wears out its life toiling twelve hours a day over the poisonous fumes of a smelter furnace, or in the poison-laden dust of a reduction mill.

"If I have sympathized with husbands and fathers and sons when they have struggled against undue industrial demands for a better wage and shorter hours, I have been in harmony with the best interests of the state—for the wider and more general the diffusion of wealth, the shorter the distance between the extremes of the social line, the more equitable the basis upon which profits are collected and distributed [illegible] widely diffused is the state's prosperity.

"If at home I have striven to relieve 150,000 people from the unjust exactions of a water monopoly; if I have done what I could to return to your capital city as soon as it might be lawfully and justly done—franchises in its streets worth millions of dollars; if I have acted upon the public the benefits of municipal ownership of all public utilities; if I have used the instruments at my command to raise municipal government above the greed and inefficiency of mere partisan control, it has been, I am confinced, in the interests of the state.

Bimetallism.

"I do not and cannot believe that the struggle for bimetallism is over, nor can I conceive that we may not look for the ultimate triumph of bimetallism.

"The opening of the countries of the Orient to European and American trade, the addition of 500,000,000 people to silver-using countries, to the consumers for European and American productions, the incomparable and danger that threatens Europe's trade upon a broken-and constantly varying par of exchange, together with the inherent justice and wisdom of the double standard for money, combine to give me confidence in the ultimate triumph of the bimetallic cause.

"I believe that the fundamental truths proclaimed in the Declaration of Independence are yet living realities to the American people and have not come to us as a dead [illegible] inheritance. All men are created equal, and they are endowed with the inalienable rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and governments should be ordained among men only to protect these rights, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed. And these truths should be held as sacred by a great people, as well for the good of struggling Boers in South Africa and the brown men in the Philippines, as for the proudest Anglo-Saxon, Teutonic, Latin or Celtic communities that ever flourished upon the face of the earth.

With the Democrats.

"When I take my place in the senate I will unite my fortunes with the Democratic members and enter their caucuses.

"I have been forced to the conclusion, long since, that where several political parties hold the same principles to be fundamental, and advocate the same legislative reforms, and are ready to enthusiastically support the same presidential candidates, each is in constant danger of defeat from the lack of union and the animosities which the interests of the different organizations almost certainly engender. If, notwithstanding defeats, the principles for which the organizations stand might nevertheless prevail, the loss to the country would not be so vital, but defeat means the victory of the opposing party, and consequently their defeat at the polls means victory for other principles and the overthrow of their own.

"The principles of the Kansas City platform are those in the main for which the People's and Silver Republican parties have contended. They are the principles upon which our great republic is founded, and by upholding which our Republican system of government can alone be maintained. Yet these principles must be fought for by Democrats and against Democrats, and against those who call themselves Democrats. They are principles for which Populists and Silver Republicans should make every sacrifice.

"I believe the fight for them can be most successfully made within the Democratic ranks.

"It must be made in the caucuses, in the primaries and the conventions of the party. Those who are outside of them are outside of the fortifications built to defend these principles, and are but helpless lookers-on, while the struggle in which all Americans are so vitally interested may be irretrievably lost. I can see no present hope for the triumph of the principles of the Kansas City platform except through the Democratic party.

The fact that I have been chosen by this legislature tells me that I need not say to it that I will endeavor to discharge all the duties of the great office of senator with fidelity and conscience. I shall at all times remember that I am but the servant of the people whom you represent. I have been appointed one of the trustees at the national capital of the dignity and welfare of our beloved commonwealth. I earnestly pray that I may not be found unequal to my share of the grave responsibility.

Congratulations.

An informal reception was tendered the senator-elect when he had finished. All persons who desired were permitted to congratulate him and shake his hand. After this the joint session dissolved and a moment later the two houses adjourned to meet again at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

MILLS CLOSED INDEFINITELY

Managers of Florence Companies Say Demands Cannot be Granted.

Special to the Gazette.

Florence, Jan. 16.—There is now a complete lockout in the works of the El Paso Reduction company and the National Gold Extraction company, and the managers of the two companies of state that the mills will be closed indefinitely. The demands of the employes for an eight-hour day in all departments can not, say the managers, be complied with.

The Metallic mill, however, is working a full force of men tonight, and the managers anticipate no lockout. The men are working on the usual schedule of time.

The fact that the National Gold Extraction company is hilling out 80 cars of ore now in the yards indicates that the management is not making a bluff in its statement that the mill is closed for an indefinite period. Manager McDonald said: "It is not so much the advance in wages that the demands of the men carry with them, but we are afraid what the concession on our part would lead to. We are treating in Florence we voluntarily advanced the wages of the men so that they are receiving 50 per cent more than they were when we located here. If they think we can afford to close our mill, we shall let them. For we are in a position to lock up and leave until it rots down."

Continuing, Mr. McDonald said: "It is not that our men wanted to strike, for many of them expressed regret at being called out by the union. Besides, we were paying as much, and in many cases more, than the scale which they settled with the Milliken people. If our men had not been interfered with by the union, the National mill would be running today. But, as it is, I want them to get their checks right away and we shall clean out the ore and board up the windows." Mr. McDonald said the National and El Paso pay out $14,000 monthly, and as the El Paso mill is also closed indefinitely, this amount will be cut off the Florence pay roll, and 200 men thrown out of employment.

The Metallic Mill.

Special to the Gazette.

Denver, Jan. 16.—C. M. MacNeill of the Metallic Gold Extraction company was seen in this city tonight in regard to the rumor of a lockout at the Metallic works in Florence, which was current in Cripple Creek this evening. He stated that he had heard of none, but that if the employes made the same demands which the El Paso and National employes had made, the management of the Metallic mill would adopt a course similar to that adopted by the El Paso and National managements. The demands of the men, he stated could not possibly be acceded to by the mill owners. The recent reduction in treatment charges and the arbitrary demands of the men, taken together, would compel a lockout.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL

Passed by the House Practically as it Came From the Committee.

MANY AMENDMENTS LOST

Bill Carries Slightly Less Than $60,000,000 of Which $23,000,000 is in Direct Appropriation.

Washington, Jan. 16.—The river and harbor appropriation bill was passed today by the house. The bill has been under consideration over a week and has been assailed from many quarters, but its friends have stood solidly by it and defeated many amendments. The bill passed practically as it came from the committee. It carries slightly less than $60,000,000, of which $23,000,000 is in direct appropriations.

Mr. Hepburn (Ia.) proposed an amendment to the paragraph appropriating $200,000 for the Missouri river to permit the secretary of war, in his direction, to use such portions of the appropriation as he might deem proper in maintaining the stability of the banks of the river.

Mr. Dougherty (Mo.) also offered an amendment on the same subject, and after some debate, Mr. Burton, chairman of the river and harbor committee, offered a substitute for the latter to permit the owners of property or municipalities abutting on the river, to build dikes or wing dams, providing such constructions do not interfere with the proper navigation of the river and are approved by the engineer in charge.

Mr. Burton's substitute was adopted and the Hepburn amendment lost.

Chairman Burton offered a substitute for section 1, which was adopted. It authorizes the president to invite Great Britain to join in an international commission, composed of three members from each country, to report from time to time upon the conditions and uses of the waters adjacent to the boundary line between the United States and Canada, including all the waters of the lakes and rivers whose waters flow by the St. Lawrence to the Atlantic ocean; also upon the maintenance and regulation of suitable levees and upon the effect upon the shores of the waters and upon the interests of navigation by reason of their diversion from their natural flow and to report upon the measures to regulate such diversions and to enter into such agreements and make such recommendations as shall best subserve the interests of navigation. It also authorizes the president to appoint the United States members of the commission and authorize them to employ experts, etc.

An amendment was added to include in the provision for preliminary examinations Humboldt bay, California, northern and southern ends.

Mr. Cushman (Wash.) offered an amendment to appropriate $100,000 for continuing the improvement between Puget sound and Lakes Union and Washington. It was lost.

Upon completion of the bill, Mr. Cushman attempted to prevent the committee from rising and reporting the bill to the house, but he was overwhelmed, the vote standing 185 to 2. The committee accordingly rose. Mr. Cushman moved to recommit the bill. He demanded the ayes and noes, but was [illegible]

This motion being lost, Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.) demanded the yeas and nays on the passage of the bill. Only 13 members backed the demand and the bill was passed without division.

The senate concurrent resolution to pay the expenses of the inauguration of the president and vice president, which was recommitted yesterday, amended so as to conform to the instructions of the house to provide for a joint committee of the house and senate, under whose auspices the inauguration ceremonies should take place, was adopted.

Then, at 5:15 p. m., the house adjourned.

KANSAS LEGISLATURE DENOUNCES LYNCHING

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 16.—Most of the time of the legislature today was taken up with the discussion of yesterday's negro burning in Leavenworth. The members of the legislature had much to say on the great disgrace which had ensued to the state.

Both houses adopted a resolution on the subject amid much enthusiasm. The resolution was introduced by Senator Carpenter and is as follows:

"Whereas, The startling information of a reliable character has reached the legislature and the general public that on yesterday, in the city of Leavenworth, a colored citizen of our state, charged with a crime, was unlawfully taken from the jail by a mob out of the protection and when in the custody of the legal authorities of Leavenworth county, and without trial or sanction of law and in violation of every principle of humanity and good citizenship, was lashed to a stake and in a fiendish, inhuman and barbaric manner, burned to death; therefore be it

"Resolved by the senate, the house of representatives concurring therein, that we deprecate, deplore and condemn the execution of this man in this summary manner without a fair and impartial trial at the bar of justice, and be it further

"Resolved, that we commend the course of Governor W. E. Stanley by having promptly placed at the disposal of the local authorities of Leavenworth county, for the protection of this man and the dignity of the state, two companies of state militia, which were never called for by the authorities of said county, and

"Resolved, further, that we favor the most rigid investigation of all the acts and circumstances attending this crime and on behalf of law-abiding citizenship, ask and demand that the perpetrators of this monstrous proceeding shall be punished to the full extent of the law."

The above resolutions were adopted in the house before adjournment at noon by an almost unanimous vote.

LIVE STOCK ASSOCIATION

An Anti-Shoddy Resolution Adopted Many Addresses Delivered.

Salt Lake, Jan. 16.—The delegates to the convention of the National Live Stock association were slow in arriving at the hall this morning and before proceeding to regular business President Springer read an anti-shoddy resolution that was adopted by the executive committee last night. The resolution calls attention to the excessive use of cotton and shoddy which were put into so-called "woolen goods," and calls the attention of representatives in congress to the fact and asks them to provide and enact such legislation as will prevent fraud in marketing the manufactured article as wholly of wool.

A committee was appointed to investigate these conditions and present them to congress. The resolution was adopted.

Memorials and reports of the executive committee in reference to the attitude of the committee on the Grout bill were read.

Resolutions were adopted in regard to the indorsement of a livestock exhibition to be held at Topeka, Kan., in 1904.

President Springer then introduced Hon. L. G. Powers of Washington, D. C., who delivered an address on "Our Wealth in National Live Stock."

On motion of General Castleman, Kentucky, a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Powers for the able manner in which he had handled the subject.

O. P. Updegraff, of Kansas, then delivered an address on the "Benefits of Horse Shows to the Horse Industry."

At the conclusion of Updegraff's address, Hon. George Q. Cannon, of this city, who has just returned from a visit to the Hawaiian islands, addressed the convention, his remarks relating chiefly to the early history of Utah.

Mr. Baker of Illinois moved that the by-laws of the association be waived and that the convention pay tribute to the memory of the late Philip D. Armour and extend to his wife and family the profound sympathy of the convention. Unanimously adopted.

The Kansas City Live Stock association has prepared a similar resolution which will be acted upon tomorrow.

At the afternoon session Mr. Stickney of Wyoming offered a resolution to the effect that a petition be sent to Washington for the establishment of an additional signal service in the Rocky mountains.

Hon. William Bolton of Oklahoma delivered an unique and characteristic speech on the advantage of Oklahoma as a stock-raising country.

Colonel John F. Hobbs of New York spoke on "Oleomargarine vs. Dairy Butter."

Hobbs was followed by Hon. D. W. Wilson of Illinois with an address on "The Buttered Side of the Question."

At the conclusion of Wilson's address the convention adjourned until tomorrow.

Tonight the visitors were entertained at the Tabernacle with an elaborate musical programme given by the famous Mormon church choir, consisting of 500 trained voices.

CLARK ELECTED

Helena, Mont., Jan. 16.—W. A. Clark, the Butte millionaire, was this afternoon elected United States senator to succeed Thos. H. Carter. Mr Clark in joint session received 57 votes out of 93 cast on the first ballot and was declared elected. The session took place in the Helena Auditorium which was crowded with people who, with the lawmakers, cheered the announcement of the result. Senator Clark was called forward and made a speech in which he referred to the last campaign and to the campaign of two years ago and the investigation in the senate.

No one was elected for the short term and balloting will be resumed tomorrow.

The coal miners north of town are all now on strike.

MENTAL COLLAPSE

Mrs. Henrietta Howell Was Found Wandering in the Streets of San Francisco.

San Francisco, Jan. 16. Mrs. Henrietta Howell, wife of H. S. Howell, formerly assistant secretary of the United States treasury department, but now appraiser of customs for the port of New York, with offices in Chicago and other commercial centers, was found wandering on the streets at an early hour this morning by the police in a state of mental collapse. Lyman Gage, secretary of the treasury, who is a friend of Mrs. Howell, was advised by wire of her condition, in order that he might inform her husband, whose address was unknown here.

Mrs. Howell's mental collapse is due mainly to financial troubles which have developed out of her mining ventures in this state.

When her husband lost her fortune some years ago she sought to retrieve in mining ventures in this state and in the effort she is said to have been assisted by Secretary Gage.

The market yesterday on the local mining exchange was a lively one with prices for the most part advancing. The sentiment is almost wholly bullish even in Zoe which closed strong at 18½. Sedan was offered at 15¼ in the afternoon and Pointer closed at 17½.

The Coal Strike

Every hour that passes makes the coal situation in this state worse. There are now 2 600 men striking, including miners [illegible] El Paso county fields. The severity of coal in Denver has become so acute that a number of companies in Denver have telegraphed to the owners of coal fields in Nebraska and Kansas for them coal in 100 car lots. Such a proceeding would not be thought of were it not for the strike in this state. President John Mitchell and District Organizer Howell have gone into the coal fields to discover the disposition of the miners there. The Fremont miners are reported as being of the impression that the strike will be of long duration. They believe it will be short in the Trinidad district, Pueblo and Las Animas counties can be induced to join the strikers. It is admitted that much depends on the course of the southern mines, which is in doubt.

Coal Miners Are Now All On Strike

[illegible] Springs [illegible] with [illegible] coal famine. There are [illegible] coal miners employed of the Carbon Dioxide and Cripple Creek [illegible] in this city are now on strike and there is a probability that the strike will be one which [illegible] last until long after the present supply of coal is exhausted and with the [illegible] situation in coal labor as it is it will be impossible to cure all [illegible]

There has been considerable said by various parties on the situation in this vicinity but little has been based on a definite information. Nothing has been issued officially from the heads of the Western Labor union.

It can be stated authoritatively by this paper that all members of the miners of these three camps are on a strike and that they have demands which they declare they will press which the companies will be quickly determined in opposing. The strike started about two weeks ago when a man wanted more wages and the strike objected to the introduction of machines in the mines [illegible] their earning capacity less. This came nearer than [illegible] in the case than did anything else that has been published.

From conversations held with the men at all three camps last evening by a representative of the Gazette the following statement of the present situation was [illegible] agreed upon among themselves and not by any order of the local branch of the miners union nor by any order from the state organization. Their grievances are based [illegible] by sympathy with the strike situation.

Their grievance may be summed up in the statement that the introduction of coal mining machines tends to make their labor harder on and to reduce their earning capacity. They resent the introduction of the machines and demand that if it be used the rates of wages to be paid be increased so that their income may not be reduced.

Heretofore the operators have paid 33 1-3 cents per ton for the mining and loading of the coal. The mining of the coal was at [illegible] the loading of it [illegible] the bed and the latter consisting of shoveling the coal into wagons or cars [illegible] the best condition of machinery [illegible] into the coal and the men are expected to load up to 4 the loading. The number of men employed is not reduced by the introduction of the machines, the mining capacity of the machines being sufficient to keep all the men at work loading but the companies establish the rate of 33 cents per ton for loading behind the machines which cuts down the earning capacity of each man.

Mr Luke Brennan who is the president of the local miners union states that neither he nor any other officer of the union is responsible for the inception of the strike and that whatever has been done up to the present time has been done by the men in their own individual capacity and not by the union as an organization. The union has held meetings for the discussion of the situation but Mr Brennan does not now feel at liberty to disclose the views of the members as expressed at the meetings. Other men employed at the mines not represented by any official connection with the union state that the union as such has taken no action and that it has received no instructions or demands from the state organization.

A meeting was held yesterday morning at the mines by the men who wished to [illegible] a committee was appointed to wait upon the operators and make certain demands. The operators state that the demands made were outrageous and that they could not be considered. One of the demands made was that a general increase of wages of ten per cent be given. This status of affairs between the companies and the men is anything but promising at the mines the men do not seem to be working in concert but the meeting yesterday morning at which the committee referred to was strictly a spontaneous meeting called by a crowd of the men who happened to be at the mines while not in any sense representing the labor organization of the coal miners it represents the feeling of the men who constitute the organization [illegible] stand in support of the position which their leaders indicate.

In the meantime the output of the local mines having become so expensive as it has in the last year there has been practically no coal shipped in here from outside camps and the city is without any supply to fall back upon. The strike now in both state at large has stopped shipment from other camps and the prospect in Colorado Springs is for a coal famine of serious proportions.

Presbyterians Had an Interesting Meeting

The First Presbyterian church congregation held the annual meeting last night in the auditorium of the church and a good many members attended. The reports of the different officers of the church showed it to be in a flourishing [illegible] Treasurer Mr Gowdy shows that there is now $[illegible] but at interest and fully secured. The total receipts of the church for the year have been $9,001 10 and [illegible] $8,[illegible] leaving a total of $[illegible] in the bank.

The pastor's salary was raised from $[illegible] to $2,000 per year on a motion [illegible] and seconded by Mr Seldomridge.

A vote of thanks was given to Dr Sinclair for his faithful services in the past as trustee of the church.

The fact that more room is needed by the church was brought out at the meeting last night and the trustees were instructed to get plans and specifications for the enlargement of the auditorium as soon as possible. There were two ways [illegible] enlargement. One was to take out the wall [illegible] the auditorium and the lecture room and in its stead put either sliding panels or a movable wall which will slide out of sight with little or no noise. Another plan is to buy a lot south of the church and extend the building in that direction. The former plan seems to be the more favorable and will cost a great deal less than the other. The seating capacity of the enlarged auditorium would be 200 more than at present and is needed very much. Scores of people are turned away from the church every Sunday at both services and the membership of the church at present exceeds 900. Dr Boyle the pastor made a few remarks about the business in hand. He said that before many years passed the debt of $[illegible] which the church owed but a few years ago will have been paid off.

Mr Seldomridge who has been superintendent of the Sunday school for the past eight years in a few brief remarks stated that in his opinion the church should pay some of the expenses of the school. The expenses have been met by the contributions from the scholars and Mr Seldomridge thinks that if the church pays a part of the expenses the children will take more of an interest in missionary work. It was voted to pay $50 per quarter for the Sunday school expenses out of the church funds. After some discussion concerning the time of the next meeting the congregation adjourned to meet in one month for the purpose of looking over the plans and giving instructions about the enlargement of the auditorium.

The meeting then adjourned to the lecture room where refreshments were served and the pictures of the first four pastors of the church were unveiled. The church has had five pastors including the present one, since it was organized. The four pastors whose pictures were unveiled are Mr Gage, Dr Kirkwood, Dr Black and Mr L. L. Taylor. Ten minute speeches were made by four of the elders of the church, Messrs Lennox Seldomridge, Hildreth and Gowdy, who told brief parts of the former pastors history. At the meeting last night Mr C. C. Hemming was elected trustee to succeed D. Sinclair.

The condition of the church is flourishing and the past year has been the best since the organization. The officials of the church are very well satisfied with the work done during the year and hope to keep it up in the future. There is talk of establishing a new chapel on Spruce street and the matter has been referred to the sessions and the trustees and will be finally acted upon at the meeting to be held next month.

CANCER

Sufferers from this horrible malady nearly always inherit it, not necessarily from the parents but may be from some remote ancestor, for Cancer often runs through several generations. This deadly poison may lay dormant in the blood 5 years, or until you reach middle life, then the first little sore or ulcer makes its appearance—or a swollen gland in the breast or some other part of the body, gives the first warning.

To cure Cancer thoroughly and permanently all the poisonous virus must be eliminated from the blood, every vestige of it driven out. This S. S. S. does and is the only medicine that can reach deep seated, obstinate blood troubles like this. When all the poison has been forced out of the system the Cancer heals and the disease never returns.

Cancer begins often in a small way, as the following letter from Mrs [illegible] shows: "A small pimple on [illegible] appeared at an inch below the eye on the left side of my face. It gave me no pain or inconvenience and I should have forgotten about it had it not begun to inflame and itch. It would bleed a little then scab over but would not heal. This continued for some time when my jaw began to swell. The coming very painful. The cancer began to eat and spread until it was large and painful. I was then advised to give it a fair trial and it was remarkable what a wonderful effect it has from the very beginning. The sore began to heal and after taking a few bottles it was entirely [illegible]. This was two years ago, there are still no signs of the Cancer and my general health could not be good." Mrs R. S. [illegible] La Fitte, Mo.

The Secret of Profitable Mining.

The notable success as managers of American mining men over mining men of other countries is in quickly and successfully solving the problem. Given a certain sum of money locked up in a certain piece of ground how can that money be extracted in the shortest possible time at the cheapest cost? A mine is nothing more nor less than a certain amount of money locked up in earthy material the more quickly that money can be taken out the less interest will have to be paid on the capital invested to take it out and the sooner the profits realized can themselves be turned into interest bearing sums. It follows logically that the more quickly a mine is developed the sooner extraction can be begun.—J. T. Hardman in the Works Management Number of The Engineering Magazine.

NOT HEREDITARY

In the main, consumption is not hereditary, it is infectious. People are too afraid of heredity; better not think of the subject at all. Infection occurs continually.

Low vital force is hereditary, which gives consumption its chance. And infection plants it.

Between the two, the crop is a big one about one-sixth of the human race, so far as is known.

We suppose it needn't be 5 per cent if people won't take fair care and Scott's emulsion of cod liver oil.

The care saves life in all ways, the emulsion is specially aimed at the lungs, beside its general food-effect.

Some Philosophers Say that the character of a people is determined by climate and soil. A notion exists in this region that the underlying limestone and consequent mountain breeze produce large men frank in manner—brave, inclined to oratory and ornamental conversation and women of uncommon beauty. A high altitude, sandy soil and good living do conduce to beauty of form and in a way to the free graces of life.

However when you meet a person who is energetic, ambitious, jubilant, hospitable prosperous and pleasant to look on, remember he has been to the Colorado Springs Infirmary of Osteopathy, Medicine and Surgery, and is, like its long list of other patients, well pleased and thoroughly satisfied with the world. A REVIEW LESSON.

THERE IS NOTHING [illegible] in regard to the lynching at Leavenworth. It has all been said many times before, and this newest crime only brings home to a different set of people the ineffectiveness of our laws and the fury of mob violence.

But each new incident of the sort gives new reason for repeating the principles which alone will suffice for a correction of an evil that all intelligent persons must deplore and all right thinking persons must desire to remedy.

In the first place the law must provide a prompt, certain and as far as possible adequate punishment for crime. It is true that no penalty that law can provide is a compensation for such crimes of the baser sort, but only as the law approaches the ideal which is instinctively in every human mind, can the law merit that respect which it ought to receive. Neither in Kansas nor in Colorado, nor in many other states does this condition prevail. The law is defective, the administration of the law is tardy and uncertain, and as long as these conditions prevail there will be an irresistible impulse towards supplementing the law by the acts of the mob.

And in the second place there must be on the part of all the people a stronger determination that the law shall be respected and obeyed. "No punishment outside of the law" is one of the foundation principles of our liberties and the person who consents to, or participates in, a violation of it, strikes a blow at the structure of our freedom. If public sentiment were right on this point, lynchings could not occur, and sheriffs would not, as was the case in both Kansas and Colorado, range themselves on the side of the mob and against the defenders of the law.

[illegible] ly settled countries. In such places the law must largely depend for its enforcement upon the [illegible] citizens who are not regular officers, and it is always difficult in times of special excitement to draw the line exactly where it ought to be drawn. It is natural that the man who is called on to assist in capturing a murderer should be inclined to assist in his punishment. It is for this reason, rather than because of any essential difference in the character of the people or any moral superiority or inferiority, that lynching does prevail in some sections and does not in others.

But the universal remedy is respect for the law. Make the law worthy of respect, and then respect it yourself and use every effort and influence to secure its respect by others. If this is done, crime will be reduced to a minimum and lynchings will become impossible.

LIVE STOCK INTERESTS OF THE WEST.

THE DISAPPEARANCE of the open range has revolutionized the live stock industry of the western states, but it has not destroyed it. On the contrary we now have better stock and more of them than we ever could have had under the old system. Under the present conditions the element of luck has been reduced to a minimum, and the live stock business has become like others a matter of intelligence, skill, experience and natural ability.

Just at present owing to uncertain [illegible] the live stock business of the west is in a very flourishing condition, and while it may be questioned whether the actual producer receives as large a share of the price paid by the consumer as he should do, the business is in very much better condition than it used to be. It is moreover the opinion of those who are in the best position to judge of such matters that the outlook for this industry is particularly good. The demand for meat is never likely to be less than it is at the present time, and there is no increase of the supply possible that will keep up with the increase of population for the future.

Large portions of the western states are peculiarly well adapted for the live stock business, more so probably than for any other, and for many years to come if not for ever, it will be one of the principal industries of the western states. The stock men therefore are acting wisely in organizing for the protection of their own interests and doing everything in their power to put their business upon a settled and permanent basis. Such conventions as the one that is now being held at Salt Lake are of great value in this way, and in the end the entire community profits by the acquaintances that are formed, the problems that are discussed and solved, and the measures that are adopted to promote the interests of the stockgrowers of the west.

A CONGRESSIONAL MISTAKE.

UNLESS CONGRESS wishes to emphasize the impression of keeping patronage and appropriations separate from the improvement of rivers and harbors, a mistake has certainly been made in refusing to incorporate in the bill any amendments for the beginning of irrigation work.

The states of the west have just as much right, reason and justice in asking for national assistance for their ditches and reservoirs as any eastern state has for its rivers and harbors, and in the majority of cases we believe that the national money would be better expended.

The west has no monopoly in the improvement of eastern waterways and it shares indirectly in the benefits that come through them. But the people of the west have a right to expect, and they will be disposed to insist, that the same broad minded consideration be extended to their interests that is already given to national affairs in other sections. The very strong endorsement that has been received from [illegible] newspapers shows the trend of public opinion and unless the two great political parties are disposed to repudiate their platforms they are distinctly pledged to the furtherance of these projects.

The temporary setback for national aid to irrigation should not be allowed to act as any disheartenment, and renewed efforts should be made to secure this aid as a matter of justice for the west, and if not as an amendment to the river and harbor bill, as a separate and independent measure intended to benefit the whole country.

THE CUBAN EXPERIMENT.

SOME OF THE anti-imperialists who criticism the policy of the United States in the Philippines start with the proposition that if the United States would promise the same thing to the Filipinos that we have to the Cubans, there would be no trouble. This assumes that the conditions are the same in both places which is by no means true, and it assumes, further, that by making the promise of independence to Cuba we will in the end have less trouble than we would if we had not passed the Teller resolution in congress and had let the sovereignty of Cuba to be determined by events, or have declared frankly in favor of annexation.

So far the Cubans are going through the form of a constitution making satisfactorily, but the final outcome is uncertain.

Representative Bailey of Kansas, who recently returned from an extended tour of Cuba, takes a very gloomy view of the situation there and does not believe that it will be possible for the people to maintain a government of their own for any considerable length of time.

"The great body of Cubans," said Mr. Bailey, "have not accumulated anything and as a rule they are not worth anything. They are unintelligent and illiterate. They have a sentiment of liberty in their minds, without any conception of its meaning. They construe liberty to mean license. Their only idea of government is power, oppression, coercion. To the Cuban, government means a job and an easy time. The Spaniards have taught them that. I believe if the United States should withdraw from Cuba there would be revolution in ninety days thereafter. My firm conviction is that Uncle Sam has got to keep his strong hand in Cuba. Yet, ultimately, it seems to me, we are bound in honor to give them a trial at self-government. That was an unfortunate sentiment that dominated congress when the Teller resolution was passed. It is a condition, not a theory, that confronts us, and we have promised them self-government. But, pending that, the United States would make a grave mistake, prove false to those people who have gone there and made investments, and prove recreant to the great trust imposed upon us, by turning them over again to riot and revolution. That is what it would mean at this time."

A great many other persons share Mr. Bailey's opinion. Under the circumstances it does not appear that it is possible to do anything else than to give the Cubans a full opportunity to show what they are capable of, and we must do this even though we are convinced that we are doing ourselves and them an injury in the experiment.

But the anti-expansionists should be careful in using Cuba as an illustration of the mistake that the administration is making in the Philippines until they are quite certain that the case of the former is better than that of the latter.

ELOQUENT PARAGRAPHS.

ONE OF THE most eloquent inaugural addresses of the year was that of Richard Yates, who has just assumed the position of governor of Illinois. The inaugural was in many respects a notable one, one of its incidents being the attendance of the mother [illegible] famous governor of the same state. [illegible] Governor Yates referred to Abraham Lincoln, and closed his address with the following magnificent tribute to that foremost American and appreciation of the higher standard of American citizenship and official responsibility.

"The greatest of all the sons of Illinois—he whose portrait hangs in this hall opposite to the portrait of the great Douglas—immediately after taking the oath of office as chief magistrate of the American people, said about forty years ago, said: 'In your hands, my dissatisfied fellow countrymen, and not in mine, is the momentous issue of the civil war. You have no oath registered in heaven to destroy this government, while I shall have the most solemn one to preserve, protect and defend it.'

"We know now in the light of his matchless career, that words failed him utterly when, at his inauguration, he strove to give suitable expression to the sentiments of his inmost soul. For we know now what was in his thought when he raised his hand and kissed the book and completed the act that absolutely and forever bound his loving heart and mighty mind and sublime soul to the glorious cause of the American people. Well did he keep his oath. Having proclaimed his purpose to rely solely for help which he needed to perform his stupendous task, upon the great American people and that God who has never forsaken them, he simply did so.

"You and I know that he received the help he asked for—received it from millions of loyal hearts and from the infinite power on high. He put one hand in the outstretched palm of the American people, and with the other he laid a strong hold on the almighty arm of the Almighty God, and standing there, supported by humanity and supported by divinity, Abraham Lincoln fought the grandest fight and won the grandest victory this world has ever seen since the Christ walked among the sons of men.

"In humble imitation coldly of his august example may not you and I get away from the mere words of our obligation, and without endeavoring to express all that it means, yet realize the fundamental fact that we have registered an oath, which no other men but we are now subject to, and that from this hour our duty to all the generations of Illinois, past, present and to come, is to stand up, like men, in our brief day, and fulfil that oath in spirit and in truth."

THE NEELY EXTRADITION.

EVERY ONE who believes in honesty and the punishment of crime will rejoice that the supreme court of the United States has decided that C. W. F. Neely shall be taken back to Cuba to stand his trial for the crime of embezzlement.

There are too many cases in which the meshes of the law become the safety of rogues instead of their entanglement and when once in a while the sword of justice cuts clean through them all it is a cause for general satisfaction.

In the present case especially we are glad that there will be no object lesson for the Cubans of the ease with which a rich and influential criminal may secure exemption from punishment. The prompt, energetic and successful prosecution of this thief will do much towards establishing honesty as a custom not only in Cuba but in Porto Rico, the Philippines and other possessions of the United States.

One of the most important events in Colorado Springs this year perhaps the most important will be the meeting of the National Irrigation congress. It was a part of the good work of the chamber of commerce last year that this important gathering was secured for this city, and it will be one of the large undertakings of the chamber this year to secure the largest amount of good from the meeting.

No amount of business activity in Colorado Springs should make this city forget the invaluable advantages that it has in its climate and its scenery. To preserve these to the fullest degree, to draw an ever increasing number of health and pleasure seekers while at the same time developing the business and industrial interests of the city to the fullest extent is the task of the city builders here.

All persons who desire information in regard to the city of Colorado Springs, and the advantages and opportunities of life in this place, whether for pleasure or for the saving of business are invited to communicate with the Chamber of Commerce, Colorado Springs.

Since the division of the islands of Samoa between the United States and Germany the relative rank of these powers as colonizers have been in evidence and in the opinion of the natives the United States has much the best of it.

FROM THE PRESS OF THE NATION.

The American Soldier First.

(Chicago Journal.)

A [illegible] letter in the London Times [illegible] that statements with regard to the American soldier that he [illegible] able to read [illegible] with a painful consciousness [illegible] the qualities shown by the soldiers of various nationalities during the war with China. In making these the writer is [illegible] his own views, but [illegible] Japanese newspaper [illegible] estimate of these virtues. He says, differ as to the relative merits of the various armies, but are unanimous in their discussion [illegible] the Chinese, which is all agree in placing the United States soldier at the head of the list.

These are frank words. The Times correspondent goes on to explain that the high place held by the American [illegible] is due to the fact that no excesses of any kind stand to his discredit, the [illegible] excesses, however, not the [illegible] of chivalry. No one claims any special virtue for the American in that respect. The Japanese attribute their solely with crimes—robberies, incendiarism, murder and outrage. Not one of these is laid to the charge of the United States private. According to Japanese accounts, "his behavior from first to last was that of a gentleman."

It was natural, perhaps, that the conduct of the Americans should stand out strongly in comparison with that of the troops of other nations during the troubles in China. The Japanese are close observers and the opinions of them [illegible] noted by this [illegible] are worth something. Thus we are told that in the matter of affiliations, the Germans, Russians and French fell naturally into one group, Americans, English and Japanese into another. When it came to the question of looting the behavior of the allies was about on a par, though "whereas," as the correspondent naively puts it, "the Indian, the Frenchman, the Russian and [illegible] times the German, stole individually, every man for himself, the Japanese stole systematically and in the public interest. At Tung-chau, instead of scattering to look for personal windfalls, they marched en masse to the [illegible] and took possession of about [illegible] of rice. At Liangliu they proceeded straight to the treasury and loading the rice upon mules, carried two and a half million taels worth of silver to the Japanese legation, nearly half a mile distant. The Russians endeavored to obstruct this [illegible] that they threw away the whole of the silver, leaving only the copper behind. The difference, Hiep, was simply between organized steal and chaotic theft."

In analyzing the conduct of the troops, the Japanese critics place the [illegible] on the ground of matter of loot and outrage. It is claimed in behalf of the French that they do not murder. Quoting from the Times correspondent:

"When they have seized their victims they are not visited by an ungovernable instinct of brute ferocity driving them to deeds of wanton bloodshed. That terrible propensity is exhibited by the Russian soldier only, of whose deeds the Japanese speak with horror and astonishment. He appears, according to their account, to be beyond the reach of every moral restraint, nor does it seem that his officers make any resolute effort to control him. On the contrary, so far as looting and Tapine is concerned, some of them are said to set the word kind of example."

The accounts of such behavior read like the description of dark deeds of the early ages, when all men were savages, and not of events of a modern Christian era. Some of the deeds of the allied troops in China will live in history as too iniquitous for credition, and we can not be too thankful for the fact that the American soldiers took no part in them. The Japanese tribute to the American soldiers is sincere, and the Times correspondent is sincere in recording it. The American soldier refrains from outrage because [illegible] to all civilization. He is the fiercest fighter in the world, but his warfare is upon the armed enemy, not upon the defenseless and weak. He is a soldier, not a murderer, and we imagine that whenever he is placed alongside of the men of other races in battle the comparison will be as strongly in his favor as it is in this case. "From first to last his conduct was that of a gentleman." That is the Japanese estimate, as recorded by the London Times. It is pleasant to believe it.

Salt to Ward off Death.

(Philadelphia Record.)

The idea that somewhere Nature had concealed the secret of perpetual youth for humanity led men in the pre-scientific ages to search for waters or drugs of magic potency. Faith in the existence of the secret, the discovery of which would enable mankind to defy death and decay brought adventurous Spaniards to the coast of Florida when the Indians alone held possession of the penisula; it was the motive of Hawthorne's romance of Dr. Dolliver; it has survived the ridicule of modern sciences, and it is as strong now as it was in the days of credulous alchemy. Thousands of physicians throughout the [illegible] are [illegible] into the years of age and decrepitude [illegible] which had seemed to leave the youth of a famous doctor, Brown-Sequard, whose hard-won reputation was impaired at last. That the world is not skeptical even now is suggestive of the respect with which it has [illegible] of the electrical [illegible] Nikola Tesla, that he will make death life heretofore mortal immortal by means of the electrical treatment for old age. In the New York newspapers are columns devoted to the political work of Mr. Abram S. Hewitt, a tolerable [illegible]. During a sojourn in Paris this distinguished American was subjected to what is called the glycerophosphate of sodium treatment, and he and his friends show great confidence in the death-defying influence of the drug.

Mr. Hewitt is a sensible man, and is no more given to blind credulity than are other hard headed men of affairs; or the fact of his improved physical condition has restored energy there can be no doubt, and the public has evidence there of in Mr. Hewitt's [illegible] of interest in municipal and national politics and in questions of social [illegible]. However, such evidence as this [illegible] to be [illegible] probably that Dr. Brown-Sequard's [illegible] confidence [illegible] to be [illegible] results are [illegible] the [illegible] every form in succession [illegible] which inspire hope and faith.

In relation to the sodium treatment, however, there is more than the experience of Mr. Hewitt. The medicinal professors at the University of Chicago who announce that they had themselves created some of the lower forms of animal life and discovered laboratory methods by which it would be possible to create human creatures, have also had attention to the qualities of sodium as a preserver of life. They were led to this by their knowledge of the value of salt in preventing the process of putrefaction as in the curing of hams and the like. These experiments are after all in that science, has been wrong in all its explanations as to why the dead lords, and that it is the chloride of Sodium (common salt) that makes the vital organ pump. They have, by the application of salt, renewed the pulsations of a heart which had ceased to beat.

Perhaps there are some lives which it would be [illegible] to prolong, for the good, the social [illegible] like the specimen, but it is doubtful if the human race would gain much by a great extension of the life of men generally. Emerson has his pathetic [illegible] of a Methuselah of an eternity of days on the part of men who do not use well the days they actually have on earth. Today we are discussing, without any clear result, the problems which were discussed in rags in Plato's time. The addition of a few more years to the life of the average man of intelligency could not be expected to yield much for the advantage of the future while it would obstruct the free course of the fresher, more courageous and better equipped men of the new generation.

Philip D. Armour.

(Chicago News.)

Philip D. Armour is dead. He came of good, sturdy, American stock and in his rise in the world and to commanding position in the world of trade and industry he remained throughout his career the same cheerful, indomitable, single-minded generous, hard-working man, true to his family and always animated by high ideals of business and civic life. A man of tremendous and unfling energy, with clear business foresight and sagacity and the ability to command, his rise was uninterrupted and at his death Chicago and the country recognizes the loss of a great captain of industry. Unlike many other men who attained to great wealth, Philip D. Armour was from first to last a worker in realities.

It would be difficult, perhaps impossible, to find a better illustration of a [illegible] than that of the man whom Chicagoans mourn and whose industries have made his name world-famous. As a worker Mr. Armour never relaxed in industry and attention to his enormous business interests until a few years of his death, when failing physical powers compelled [illegible] responsibilities that would have crushed a less indefatigable toiler. If there was one [illegible] in his career it was [illegible] in dominating business he found, like many another before him, that business in turn dominated him. He had given all his strength and energy to his work and it had come to have a fascination for him and a compelling power he was unable to resist.

Simplicity and generosity were prominent traits in Mr. Armour's character. His liberality and philanthropy were like the man, unostentatious, and hundreds have learned to look upon him as a benefactor whose greatest pleasure was in doing good, if not of an expectation or wish for public recognition. But these channels of benevolence were not a sufficient outlet for his generosity and abounding good will, and, first selecting in Dr. Gunsaulus a man in whom he had implicit confidence, Mr. Armour confided to him the task of building up a school of a practical kind, in which boys and girls, young men and young women may receive the training necessary for them in entering upon practical life. This institution, the Armour Institute, will remain as a permanent memorial of one of the men who may be called the builders of the Chicago of today.

Australasia.

(Salt Lake Tribune.)

The States of Australasia have ceased to be separate colonies of the British empire. They are united in one great confederation, and while they have a governor-general, appointed by the queen, there is little of the British [illegible] so far as the affection of the people may cause them to heed the governor-general. To all intents and purposes they are free and independent states.

A vast amount of interest attaches to that new government. It begins about where the United States did when the Constitution was ratified. It has just about the same population, and though not nearly so much land that can be cultivated, it is the second gold producing country in the world, and that will give the country a more rapid growth than ours had at first. They are a strong and stubborn people over there; they are not like Englishmen, not like Americans, not even like the Canadians, but have characteristics of all these.

They are progressive, too. No one need think that they are not thinkers. The way ballots were cast did not suit them, and they invented the "Australian ballot." They grew weary of strikes and passed a law which has stopped all strikes since it was passed. They were dissatisfied with the way finances were carried on, and so fixed it that government loans, with proper safeguards can be secured. In their isolation they organized art studies and one result is that some of the very first singers in the world are natives of those islands in the south seas.

There is something apparently in the climate that gives to that people exquisite voices. They have a strong press and good schools, but naturally many of the people are most provincial and as set in their ways as so many donkeys.

The foundations for a great people and a great country are there, and we are glad to know that a warm cordiality exists between them and the people of our own western coast. There ought to be for all time the closest kind of friendship between Australia and the Pacific coast of our country. It is true that while the Australians are dead in love with the queen and have sent a mighty contingent to help fight her battles in South Africa, the average Australian had rather trade with this country, especially the west coast, than with England. The growing trade is shown in many ways. The [illegible] steamers that Spreckles has ordered for the Australian route—one of which has reached San Francisco and sailed for Sydney—are proof, and as the time is shortened and as the industries of both countries enlarge, there ought to be closer and closer business and social relations between the two countries at least up to the limit [illegible]. Australia now raises the finest of wools. Forty years ago merino sheep were imported into California from Australia and the cattle of that country supplied the fresh beef which Admiral Dewey ate in Manila harbor, and we believe the trade is still continued. The great drawback in the interior of that country is a lack of water, but the water will be utilized there better than in the arid belt of the United States. Hail to the United States of the South Pacific!

CHAMBER MUSIC RECITALS REVIVED

Mr Rudolph Goldmark yesterday revived the chamber music recitals which [illegible] for years [illegible] the chamber concerts this year Mr Goldmark is assisted by Miss Lucile Du Pre of Denver. Miss Du Pre is [illegible] state and two such able musicians in concert together afford an [illegible] worthy [illegible]

The opening recital of the series of three was attended yesterday afternoon by an audience which filled [illegible] and that these musical events will prove as popular this year as they have been in the past. Yesterday afternoon's programme included [illegible] pieces of modern French music. Mr Goldmark and Miss Du Pre played four movements from each of two sonatas for the piano and violin by Cesar Franck and Gabriel Faure. The difficult [illegible] carried upon the highest musical skill of the two artists. Mr Goldmark who is an artist particularly as a master of Wagnerian music demonstrated again as he has done before that his power of interpretation is not confined to the works of the great German master. His playing yesterday displayed times a lightness of touch that was as delicate as a ripple on the water and again at times there was demonstrated the power that has so often rung out the heavy chords which characterize the music dramas of the Master. In shading and in the crescendo and diminuendo effects his playing was faultless and his adaptation of the piano to the rising and falling power of the violin was a notably pleasing feature of the duets.

Miss Du Pre has been heard here with [illegible] but her playing with Mr Goldmark yesterday demonstrated the fact that she is a master of music of the highest class. The tones of her violin drawn out with a hand confident of ability firm and yet delicate at times stringently powerful or with sweet cadence blended harmoniously with the chords of the piano. It was the combined effort of the two instruments that [illegible] true conception of the composers in the two selections to the almost rapturous delight of the audience. Although the players are artists in individuality they subordinated their instruments to each other in the true application of the composers [illegible]

Mr Goldmark [illegible] the afternoon he sang three songs, three of which were in French and the other three in English. They were the compositions of Faure, Gounod, Chaminade and Massenet. Most of the songs were written in keys that displayed the sweetness of the male upper register. Gounod's "Ave Maria" is never as [illegible] as when it is sung by a male voice and the audience was largely composed of musical people and the hearty applause at the conclusion of the two sonatas by Mr Goldmark and Miss Du Pre was a high compliment though well deserved.

Next Wednesday afternoon the second concert of the series will be given by [illegible] composed from German music.

ANOTHER COMPETITION

Jan 24 has been decided upon as the date when A L Daniels and the other shots of the state who wish to enter the [illegible] shooting trophy now held by John W Garrett of this city.

Mr Daniels announced at the close of the shoot last Friday that he would come here again [illegible] for the trophy which had been taken from him that day by Mr Garrett and the date has just been set. The shoot will be an all-day affair, the morning being given over to optional sweepstakes events and the Spaulding competition beginning at 2 o'clock. The announcement from Denver of the date which stated further that there would be several shots present on the 24th who were not here when [illegible] lost the medal. Pueblo will send her competitors than were here before. Each succeeding shoot for this trophy becomes more interesting than [illegible] Colorado Springs in having [illegible] Mr Garrett capture the trophy now becomes a great [illegible] in having [illegible]

On the 23d there will be an all day shoot in Pueblo at [illegible] stakes to which several local shots including Mess [illegible] Shumway will go. At that time there will be another interesting competition it being the final shoot in the contest for the Outdoor Life medal which was put up for competition in [illegible] months ago.

CITY HALL NOTES

Business is very dull in all of the city departments at present. There were only four cases in police court yesterday morning and that was a good deal compared with the business of the past few days. George Burns who is known to the police as Soldier Burns was up before the police judge again yesterday morning on a charge of drunkenness and was fined $10 and costs. He was not able to pay and was committed to jail to serve out his sentence.

Jim Murray and Frank Herbert were also fined $10 and costs on charges of drunkenness and were committed to jail.

Mary Duxon who is known as Irish Mary was fined $[illegible] and costs for being drunk and was committed to jail upon [illegible]

The city sewer is being extended on Platte street west of the creek and will be carried as far north as the Bristol school building. Work was begun on this sewer last spring but was discontinued for some reason.

Chief Parsons of the fire department had the engine out yesterday for the purpose of testing the pressure in the water pipes in the north end of town. There are small mains in that part of the city and the test yesterday showed that they should be replaced by larger ones.

CALLED EAST—Judge W C Robinson left last evening via the Santa Fe for Princeton, Indiana, where he was called by a telegram announcing the death of his infant daughter. The child was but 17 months of age. Prior to his receipt of the telegram announcing the [illegible] knowledge of the baby's illness. Prince [illegible] the parents of Judge Robinson and of his brother W D Robinson who was here last fall. It was the old family home and the burial of the child will probably take place there. Mr Robinson will probably be absent from the city about a week.

THE GREAT WAR PLAY

The [illegible] of the different [illegible] has [illegible] with [illegible] of the world for the past [illegible] years. One might almost say that of the present the war [illegible] one of the most popular [illegible] that has right revived [illegible] and then there is [illegible] for magnificent proportions and stirring accurate and complete. And [illegible] all this is woven a delicate little love fabric [illegible] that appeals to all [illegible] a spark of sentiment in the hard [illegible] and the thrilling incidents and [illegible] the presentation of this [illegible] is [illegible] excellent acting, [illegible] of stage craft and mechanism [illegible] under the management of Jacob Litt [illegible] that which was made for the Broadway theatre New York City and the company is reported [illegible] the country. Shenandoah is to be presented at the Opera house next Monday evening. Reserved seats are now on sale at the regular prices of admission.

THEODORA

The society dames and the fashionable women of the city have a particular interest in Theodora which will be presented by the Opera house next week. It is [illegible] will be dressed in [illegible] She will wear six different costumes purchased in Paris [illegible] The garments are [illegible] heavily laden with jewels and [illegible] A diamond girdle which encircles the waist and reaches to the floor is [illegible] which she wears. It is made of silver and [illegible] the city. The company which is presenting the play is an unusually large and expensive one. They carry a car load of scenery for the proper production of the play.

GEO. C. WATKINS DEAD

George C Watkins teller at the Wm P Bonbright & Co bank, died yesterday afternoon at St Francis hospital. Death was due to fever complicated with brain trouble. Young Watkins was a native of Arkansas and spent most of his time in a bank at Little Rock. Some five years ago he came to this city for his health. In a short time he secured a place with the Bonbrights and gradually grew into the most responsible positions. Recently [illegible] about the first of the month broke down. His condition became serious and he was removed to the hospital [illegible]

He was of a most genial and pleasant disposition and had a great many friends in this city. [illegible] yesterday there were many expressions of regret heard on every hand.

F D Watkins a brother arrived recently and was present when death came. He left last evening with the remains on the Rock Island for Bushman's Mills where the funeral will be held.

A J GOODWIN DEAD. Arthur J Goodwin an accountant and draughtsman died at the [illegible] Five Points last week. The funeral services were held in Salt Lake on Sunday. Goodwin was well known [illegible] was connected with the Continental Oil company. He went to Utah to live about two years ago where he was acting as an insurance agent. He was attacked with paresis and about a year ago was confined to the asylum. He is survived by his wife who has loyally stood by him through many afflictions and troubles.

FOR BURNED STOCK—A suit was filed in the county court yesterday entitled John Simmons vs the Arapahoe M Co. The action is brought to compel a reissue of 468½ shares of the stock of the company to the plaintiff, he claiming that he was once the owner of such amount of stock but that the same was destroyed by fire.

Colds and Rheumatism

The relation between tonsilitis or sore throat and rheumatism has long been known.

There is a relation between rheumatism and pneumonia. The persons that are liable to pneumonia are equally liable to rheumatism. This relationship is not limited to pneumonia and sore throat for it applies also to severe cases of bronchitis, pleurisy and other inflammatory conditions.

Many of the febrile storms consisting of aching chills fever and in reaction with perspiration and subsequent tired feeling and usually called a cold have back of them the same etiologic factor as rheumatism. These rheumatic cold cases as they may be called do better under Hydro and Electric treatment than any other.

Lessees Believe They Have Cut the Tillery Vein in the 200 Foot Level--Gold Hill Mining Company Has Three Foot-Vein

SAVING ORE FROM MISSOURI

Which is Expected to Ship Between $50 and $60 in Gold to the Ton ---Sol Camp May Take Out a Lease on a Part of the Claim

The lessees on the Moonlight claim of the Missouri Gold Mining company are now fast at work and are saving ore. They started work only very recently from the Good Will tunnel which crosses the property in a vein [illegible] thing like $8 in the tunnel and which a little prospecting in the [illegible] fact that there was a considerable amount of low-grade ore in sight.

Since work was started however the ore has improved and Sol Camp who is the superintendent of the Elkton properties and who is now [illegible] lease on the Moonlight sent word down to this city yesterday morning that ore was being saved which would ship from $50 to $60 in gold to the ton.

The present lease of which it is understood the well-known John McCaughey will be the superintendent is on grant d by the Good Will tunnel company [illegible] end of the claim [illegible] the use of the tunnel and the facilities for shipping as well as for the use of the mill which limits very economical mining will be [illegible] company.

The other part of the claim it is understood is not leased and the prospect hole of the vein indicates that it will extend through the unpatented portion as well as through that held by the tunnel company and subject to McCaughey and associates.

Sol Camp has in [illegible] the Missouri company for a lease on the remaining portion of the Moonlight claim and if it is granted him it is not improbable that he will sink a deep working shaft to open the ore. It is not given out yet, however, whether this lease will be granted or not.

COMPRESSOR FOR BOB LEE

Which Will Operate Two Drills by the First of the Month---Three Feet a Day Being Sunk Now With Hand Drills.

The directors of the Bob Lee Gold Mining company [illegible] on a two drills compressor to expedite the work of sinking a deep shaft on the property. [illegible] negotiations are now on foot to secure the machinery. From present indications it will be installed by the first of the month at which time two drills will be put to work in the shaft and from the [illegible] sunk.

At the present time working with hand drills between three and four feet of sinking is being accomplished daily and the shaft is now about [illegible] feet where sinking [illegible] resumed—a depth of something like 60 feet. The shaft is going to the 200 foot point at once.

The Bob Lee properties consist of [illegible] acres located in the group adjoining the Hoosier claim of the Gratton Gold Mining company which has produced over $50,000 to date and which is one of the big mines of the camp although little is heard of it. The Hoosier con[illegible]

WINCHESTER AND STEVENSON LEASE TWO GOULD CLAIMS

The directors of the Gould company have just granted a lease on the Nil Desperandum [illegible] Joseph Winchester and A M Stevenson of Denver and Chief fame. The lease is granted for a term of three years and calls for 25 per cent straight royalties and a good amount of work. It was the intention of the lessees to put down a deep working shaft on the property and very little lateral work will be done before the shaft has attained a depth of 1000 feet. These claims of the Gould company adjoin the Doctor Chief and Ingham claims on the north and it is thought that the work which Messrs [illegible] has done in the Doctor property has induced them to hunt for an extension of the ore in these Gould claims.

[illegible] obtained from the Nil Desperandum but no pay ore has been opened up with the little amount of development work done. The Gould company now has two cars about ready to go out the stock having been mined mostly from the 40 foot level.

"I Told You So"

Late in December, 1900, I stated in my advertisements that Cripple Creek stocks were at bed rock, and predicted that a general advance would begin early in 1901.

It is yet early in 1901, but the predicted advance has occurred. A general advance began January 2nd, and is still under way, as a comparison of prices will readily show.

Another Prediction

This upward movement will continue, and prices of good stocks will reach a higher range than at any time in their previous history.

My Advice

Is to buy all good stocks at once, and get the full benefit of this advance.

While selecting stocks for purchase, investigate the merits of Zoe, Lucrative and St. Thomas. I am certain these stocks will show strong advances, as the properties they represent are steadily improving with development.

THE COLORADO SPRINGS MINING STOCK EXCHANGE

Colorado Springs, Jan. 16.—The market today on the exchange was still in a sound condition. A few stocks were somewhat lower, due more to individual than general causes, but the majority of the stocks traded in manifested quite creditable strength, and several scored good fractional advances. The market is steadily creeping upward, fraction by fraction gaining the position which the showing on the properties represented by them justifies, and the appearances are all in favor of a continuance of the strengthening tendency. The trading maintains good proportions, thus indicating a good amount of healthy interest entirely dissociated from the excitement which characterizes a boom, and for that reason it is a very plausible assumption which the bears are indulging in, namely that the advances which are now being scored are of a permanent nature.

Elkton sold very lightly, 200 shares went at $1.88, the close 1.87 bid and 1.88 asked. Gold Dollar was also stronger selling at 24½, and Anchoria-Leland advanced to 30. Isabella opened strong at 68, but lost ½ at the close. Yesterday it sold down to 67½. Colorado Centennial at 1.02. Constantine and Easter Bell recovered fractionally; Margaret advanced further to 3, Mint to 22 and Missouri to 7½. Pilgrim was a good trader at 10¾. Acacia, however, was very low at 26¾, and Ernestine suffered a decline to 4½, while Sedan lost 14½ at 15¼, with no sales. Lucrative also declined from 7 to 6¾, closing two points higher. Agnes sold as high as 7½. Leon went at 2½ and Zoe closed at 18½, with that amount bid for any amount of the capital stock, any way.

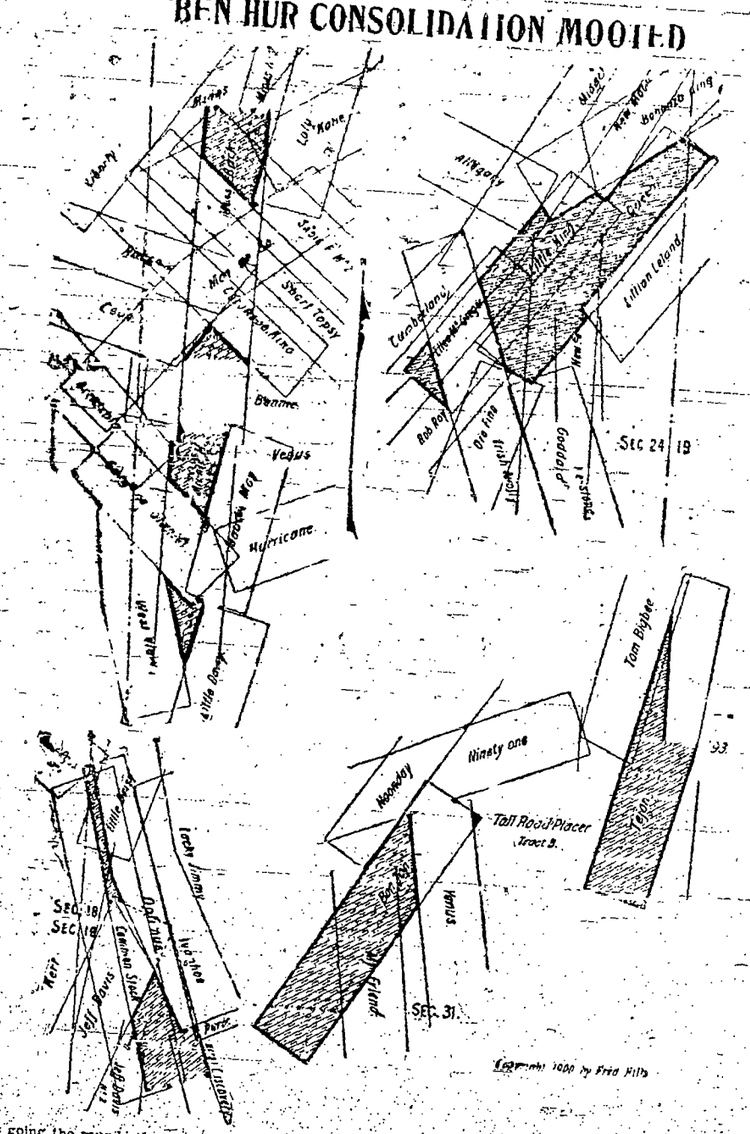
BEN HUR CONSOLIDATION MOOTED



A report is going the rounds that the Ben Hur company are about to be put into a consolidation with the properties of another company on the same hill. Action was taken some weeks ago to bring about a consolidation between the Ben Hur and a company of some prominence, which cannot now be named.

President Frank H. Pettingell was asked if it were true that such a offer had been made. He replied that although the offer was made so far as he was concerned it would not be accepted.

It is not known upon what terms the proposal was made, but it is said that in the end the consolidation would be to the benefit of both companies concerned.

As will be seen by the accompanying map the Ben Hur company controls a considerable acreage outside Gold hill, and it is said that if the consolidation is effected a new company will be organized to own the other properties.

SPECULATIVE CONFUSION

Wide and Frequent Fluctuations In Different Groups of Stocks.

SMALL NET GAINS REMAINED

Close Was Unsettled and Irregular With No Evidence of Demand From Other Than Short Interests.

New York, Jan. 16.—The excessive confusion of speculative enthusiasm today was shown by wide and frequent fluctuations in prices, often conflicting, in different groups of stocks. An evident effort was made to differentiate the movement of the steel stocks from that of the railroad stocks. The action of the steel group yesterday made it very evident that a decline in them was to be faced. Some effort was made at the opening to contest this and supporting orders effected a rise of a point over last night in Steel & Wire and Tin Plate and 1¾ in National Tube but the last named stock was the only one which retained any show of strength in the later dealings. There was some show of support in Federal Steel early in the day and after an opening decline of 1½ it was rallied a point but the selling of the stock was persistent and urgent on account of disappointment by speculators that no action was taken at yesterday's meeting to insure quarterly dividends for the coming year in which there had been great faith. There were occasional rallies in the stock and it was lifted vigorously at least two points above the lowest but manipulation was palpable in the rally. At the low level this stock was 4¾ below last night and [illegible]

Next to this Tin Plate was most acutely affected in spite of yesterday's 5 per cent. dividend declaration and fell an extreme four points. Colorado Fuel was down 3¼. American Hide & Tennessee Coal 2¾ and others of the group from 1 to 1½. The conditions in the railroad list were exceedingly irregular during the early dealings but there were sufficient points of strength to overcome the few opening declines caused by sympathy with the London market and with the weakness of the steel stocks. There was a manifest disposition to realize also in the coalers and a sagging tendency in the Vanderbilts. St. Paul was vigorously bid up 3 and in the midst of this uncertainty and marked up nearly 6 points, precipitating a large volume of forced buying from the bears. The market generally responded in sympathy but with a quick relapse of 2 points in St. Paul began to run off again. Then Burlington took up the movement on the decline of the 4 [illegible] tors to increase the stock to [illegible] to be faced at par to stockholders. The resulting rise in the stock [illegible] 2½ but it fell back again. When the [illegible] of the [illegible] to hold the [illegible] [illegible] and to a very [illegible] price was forced considerably below last night and a few small net gains remaining. The closing was unsettled and irregular but there was no evidence of any demand from other than short interests.

The announcement of gold exports today or tomorrow's steamers did not seem to affect sentiment as the early strength in the market developed after the shipments were known. The accumulation of money at present continues on so large a scale that the interest rate tended lower to pay in spite of the gold exports and the softness of the exchange market showed that the absorption of exchange bills sold against the gold exports was not easy. The bond market was moderately active and eased off in sympathy with stocks. Total sales, $2,350,000.

New York Money.

New York, Jan. 16.—Money on call steady at 2½@3, last loan, 2½. Prime mercantile paper, 4@5.

Sterling exchange barely steady with a fair business in bankers' bills at $4.87@4.87¼ for demand and at $4.85¼@4.85½ and $4.88. Commercial bills, $4.82¼@4.82¾.

Silver certificates 64¾@65½c. Bar silver 63⅝c. Mexican dollars, 49¼c. Government bonds weak; state bonds [illegible]

The London Market.

New York, Jan. 16.—Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram this morning: The markets here were slack but firm today, although the call for more money for South Africa was disliked. Americans began calmly under leadership of Erie, recovered in the first hour. They remained quiet then until just before the close when St. Paul and Northern Pacifics spurted sharply on New York orders attributed to the so-called Morgan deal. Their buoyancy, however, failed to stimulate the general rise, suggesting that market interest here has faded. Call money rates were higher on the settlement demand. There is talk of gold coming from Russia. The bank lent a large sum for a few days at 5½ per cent. It bought £120,000 gold in bars.

The copper fortnightly statistics show a decrease in stocks of 512 tons and in supplies of 108.

Coffee Market.

New York, Jan. 16.—Coffee—Spot, Rio, steady; No. 7, invoice, 7¾@16, mild quiet; Cordova, 8@12½.

Such little pills as DeWitt's Little Early Risers are very easily taken, and they are wonderfully effective in cleansing the liver and bowels. Hedley, Arcularius Drug Co., E. E. Smith, 117 South Tejon street.

Chicago Grain and Provisions.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—May wheat opened lower at 76¾ to 76⅞ and, partly because Liverpool showed no weakness, in spite of the decline on this side. The crowd here was in a mood to keep a keen eye on Wall street and curb on the speculative desires rather than on the grain [illegible] To buying from this quarter is attributed the bulge of a week ago and to a withdrawal of this source of support the recent decline. [illegible] marked. Wall street [illegible] believed to be [illegible] with the stiffness of some large long lines leaves the rank and file on center hooks. At the opening some inconsequential selling by a house supposed to represent Wall street brought out all sorts of small stuffs and May dropped to 75¾@¾. Here the pressure ceased and [illegible] Attempted realizing showed how stack the demand has grown. The decline caught stop-loss orders and the market near the end of the session dropped [illegible] lower at 75⅝@¾. Corn was dull and easier.

Oats were moderately active at times and again extremely dull for considerable periods.

Provisions were heavy on liberal hog receipts in sympathy with wheat.

LAND PATENT—A patent from the government to [illegible] W. Post on 160 acres of land in El Paso county was filed yesterday with the county clerk.

LADIES OF G. A. R.—Kit Carson circle [illegible] will meet in regular session Friday January 18 at 2 o'clock. All members are [illegible]

TEMPLARS—A stated conclave of Pike Peak commanders No. 6, K. T. will be held this evening at 7:30 o'clock. Important business. Sojourning Sir Knights are courteously invited.

WARRANTY DEED—The county clerk [illegible] a warranty deed from Lucius Fitch to Lee Turner conveying the north 90 feet of the west 40 feet of lots 11 and 12 block 27, addition No. [illegible] to Colorado Springs; the consideration is $1,000.

SUNDAY SERVICE—The [illegible] of the series of vesper services of Colorado college is to occur Sunday afternoon at 4:30 in the auditorium of Perkins hall. Dr. Henry Walker pastor of the First Congregational church of Boulder, a noted scholar, will deliver the address.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY—The Woman's Missionary society of the Cumberland Presbyterian church will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening at the home of Mrs. Burlew, 212 North Walnut at 7 o'clock. Election of officers. All friends of the society are most cordially invited.

BALL COMMITTEE—An important [illegible] will be held at the Glockner sanitarium at 8 o'clock this evening. Mrs. E. C. Goddard will preside, and it is earnestly requested that all the chairmen of the various committees be in attendance.

AID SOCIETY—[illegible] the ladies Aid society of the First M. E. church will meet with Mrs. Stafford at 420 North Weber street this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The election of officers will take place, followed by refreshments and an hour of sociability. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies of the church.

MRS. DREWITT DEAD—Word was received in this city yesterday by Mrs. [illegible] of the death of her mother, Mrs. Nancy C. Drewitt, in her 74th year, at Fairfield, Ia. Many who met her when she was visiting her son, Rev. [illegible] Drewitt, a former pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, will be sorry to hear of her death, as she was a woman of much [illegible]

SURPRISE PARTY—On Tuesday evening the young ladies of Giddings store gave a surprise party in honor of Miss Mabel Bailey, who leaves next Monday [illegible] for the east. The party was given at the home of Mr. Charles Bailey on Grant avenue. The evening was spent in music and games, after which a supper was served. Those present were the Misses Smith, Ellis, Whitehead, Josephine Moody, Gertrude Johnson, the Messrs. Stommerman, Mennet, Splaine, Bert Griffith and Mrs. Charles Bailey.

NEW OFFICE—The office of the clerk of the district court, D. A. Thomas, has been greatly improved by the new incumbent. Heretofore the clerk's private office has been little more than a private entrance to the general office for the court house employes and others who have left it utterly to go inside the general business desk of the main office. The door in the office will be kept locked and all persons having business to transact behind the desk will go through the main office. New furnishings add to the attractiveness of the clerk's office.

CLUB DANCE—The Ariel club's dance will be given at the Broadmoor casino this evening and promises to be a very enjoyable affair. Four special street cars will leave Uintah street at 8 p. m. sharp and will pick up the crowd all along Pike's Peak avenue at 8:10 and 8:15. Returning they will leave the Casino at intervals from midnight to 4 a. m., and one car will go to Colorado City and the West Side. The other three will take passengers as far north as they wish to go. The cars will all be light and warm. The refreshments will be served by Mueth and will consist of sandwiches, coffee and fruit punch. Prof. Ernestini has been engaged for the occasion and will play all of the popular waltzes and two steps of the season. The committee and all who have charge are assured of a good time as the floor is in the pink of condition and the music the best that the city affords.

Individual effort and individual instruction are the keynotes of success. We give the instruction and furnish the [illegible] Business College and Shorthand Exchange Bank building.

Important to Travelers

Commencing January 13, the Pullman lounge and buffet cars on the Rock Island route west of the Missouri river will be under the direct charge of the Dining Car department and will be operated on same lines that have made the Rock Island dining cars so popular throughout the west.
